Cloud Tectonics is a play by José Rivera, a dreamlike (and ultimately tragic) love story about its two protagonists, Anibal de la Luna and Celestina del Sol. It is set in Los Angeles, with most of the action taking place in Anibal's house. It is somewhat of the archetypal "boy meets girl" story—but it is truly told by a master of the form.

In a college class (eons ago), I defined time as an artificial construct that allows us to keep events in order. I thought it a pretty good (if straight-ahead) definition, and so did the prof. But it took a poetic sensibility like playwright José Rivera to create "Cloud Tectonics," a whole play about time, its deeper meanings and its effects on people and the universe.

Theater Review: "Cloud Tectonics" | San Diego Gay and ...
There's a quiet moment in "Cloud Tectonics" when Celestina, the lost pregnant innocent recites a love poem to the more worldly, slightly jaded male lead. She pours her love out to him in Spanish which, in true tragic fashion, he cannot understand. Each of these plays are about love, but not cliched. Its about sex, but not graphic.
